THE Compiler and Printer of this Work, having given the Public reason to expect it would be published at a more early period, conceives it necessary to say a few words, to account for the delay, and to point out the improvements which he has made upon the Poll published in 1754, by the mode he has adopted, in the arrangement of the Book, which he has now the satisfaction of laying before the Public.

He acknowledges himself to have been much deceived in his first idea of the portion of time necessary, to arrange the names of the Freeholders under their respective Parishes, in the order they are now printed; which was indeed a most laborious task: As he has preserved, throughout each Parish, the direct order of voting; and besides having classed the Freeholders under the days on which they polled, their names follow as they were received at the Booth.

The hurry and confusion which must ever attend a Contest of this kind, led him to expect, that the Names of many Freeholders were erroneously spelt by the Poll Clerks, and their places of residence improperly described; and he thought it his duty to cause personal application to be made to intelligent Gentlemen in every principal Town in the County, whereby he obtained much local information, by being enabled in a great measure to correct the Misnomers, and to add under their respective Parishes, the Names of many Freeholders who had only been described as living in Hamlets, Manors, and obscure places, and who were also, in some instances, entered under Parishes to which they did not belong.

These

These deviations from the Sheriff's Poll Books are enumerated under that Title, and follow the Errata; where the reader will find, what were the original entries, and will, it is presumed, be convinced, that their transposition, &c. was necessary towards improving the work: but the alterations in the spelling of names were by far too numerous to be so noticed.—In some parts of the Poll, the christian names of the Occupiers are omitted for want of room, and a great many of them did not appear in the original Poll Books.

In every instance, strict attention has been paid to the original Poll Books, so far as relates to the Candidates for whom each Freeholder voted; and the Errata prove, that, in the arranging and printing of nearly 7000 names, only Six Errors that could at all affect the number of Votes for each Candidate, have escaped the press. The Under-Sheriff, (Augus. Greenland, Esq.) has with great care and attention, examined the printed copy with the original Poll Books, and in his Address to the Freeholders, he acknowledges the same to be a faithful copy, “save and except the Errata and List of Deviations, &c. &c.”

The complete list of the parishes, separated into fourteen divisions, and numbered to correspond with the plan of the Booth, and the General Abstract, &c. &c. all which precede the Body of the Work, contain a variety of statements new to the County, and are at once so concise in their nature, as not to require any explanation, but are calculated to give every information that can be expected from the publishing a County Poll. Indeed, this part of the book has other properties which the Printer begs leave to point out; for here every Gentleman may learn in what Hundred his parish is situated, the Lath, Division, &c. to which it belongs, and whether in East or West Kent, all which are necessary matters of information to persons concerned in the sittings of Justices, Quarter Sessions, and other public meetings in the County, and EVERY FREEHOLDER will find it useful upon a future Contest.

The Hundreds are chiefly taken from Kilburne's Survey of Kent, and corrected by Hasted (see the Errata) so far as his History extends. Those Parishes which have no Hundreds printed against them, have peculiar jurisdictions of their own, or are branches of the Cinque Ports, and where parishes are situated in more than one Hundred, that Hundred is noticed wherein the Church stands.

The

It is clearly demonstrated, by the General Abstract of the Poll, that the Total Number of Votes which were given for each of the Candidates, are as appear under their different Names in the following TABLE - - - - - which is supposed to have arisen from the haste in casting up the Books; and on the certainty of a disproportion in the numbers, the Friends of the respective Candidates were not, it is presumed, anxious for the most absolute precision.

The Printer has to acknowledge himself under the highest obligations to Leonard Bartholmew, Esq. the Sheriff of the County, for the confidence he was pleased to place in him, when he delivered to his care, the Original Poll Books; and he trusts the public will do him the justice to say, he has faithfully and honestly endeavoured to discharge his duty in the arrangement of this work.

He does not expect to profit from the undertaking, for his expences have been great, and an uncommon portion of labour has been necessary, which has unavoidably delayed its publication; but he trusts he shall have the credit of having improved upon the plan of the Polls formerly published in this County, both in point of utility, and execution.

He has to thank the Gentlemen in the County, who so readily assisted him in correcting the Misnomers, &c. &c. and more particularly is he indebted to the Under-Sheriff for the pains he has taken to revise, and to sanction this work, and for the information he has been pleased to give the public, in his Address to the Freeholders.

PHOENIX PRINTING OFFICE,

Rochester, January 1791.

SHERIFF's OFFICE for the County of KENT,

No. 15, NEWMAN-STREET, January 4, 1791.

TO THE

WORTHY FREEHOLDERS

OF THE

COUNTY OF KENT.

GENTLEMEN,

A GREEABLY to the High Sheriff's Commands, I have carefully examined and compared with the original Poll Books the following pages, from No. 17 to No. 247, both inclusive, and do hereby certify, that they, together with the following Errata and list of Deviations from the Original Poll Books, do contain a true, and faithful copy of the said Original Books, save and except the arranging the Freeholders under their several places of abode, and also save and except the omission of the Christian Names of various of the Occupiers of Freeholds, which omissions I have not supplied in the Errata, because it would have lengthened them greatly, delayed the publication, and been read by very few.

The

The great industry, care, and attention of Mr. Gillman in, and to this Publication, has occasioned the list of deviations from the Original Poll Books being extended to the length it is ; for finding many Misnomers and imperfect descriptions in those books, he thought it his duty to the County to correct the same, and I verily believe that he has done it faithfully ; for having almost a general knowledge of my native county, I have in many instances had every reason to believe that his deviations from the Original Books, will give his readers the best information that can be had of, and concerning the persons polled : but in obedience to the High Sheriff's Commands, it became my duty, by the above-mentioned list, to let you see what were the entries actually made at the time of polling ; which duty has taken me many more weeks in performing, than I conceived it could have cost me days ; being often obliged to go through several thousand names, for that of one Freeholder, by reason of his having gone to a wrong box.

As an Election contested, as was that to which this book relates, may not, and, for the quiet of the County, I hope will not soon happen again, I think my gratitude to the County, for having had the honor to serve it as Under Sheriff from the time of Mr. Gregory's resignation, is called upon to state how, and in what manner, the Poll was taken, which may be useful on a future occasion.

As such a Contest had not happened for many years before, I had it not in my power to draw any information from my worthy Predecessors Messrs. Austen and Gregory, whose great readiness to assist me on all occasions of difficulty, I here beg leave to acknowledge. I was obliged to proceed on my own poor judgment ; for, agreeably to the orders of the High Sheriff on Friday the 18th of June, I had the honor to attend at Ashford, the three Gentlemen delegated by the Candidates, to fix upon the place and mode of polling :—At five in the evening of that day, I received their determination, and immediately sat off for Maidstone, where I arrived about ten the same evening—In that interval alone, I had to think on a subject that would admit of no delay—At eleven that night I went with the Carpenter to Pennenden Heath, and after having fixed on the spot for erecting the Booth, returned to the Inn, and immediately made the best drawing in my power of the same, being obliged to be in Town the next morning to set the Printers to work, to provide Poll Clerks, and all things necessary for the approaching poll:—On Saturday the 26th I returned to Maidstone, and found in great forwardness, a Booth of the following dimensions and construction, viz:
Poll :

	Feet.	Inches.
Length from out to out - - - - -	106	0
Depth from Front to Rear, out to out - - - - -	25	0
Height in Front and Rear from the Ground, to the } Covering at the Top - - - - - }	12	0
Projection of the Top (or Roof) over the Front, to } carry the Rain over the Persons polling on Foot }	4	0
Height in Front from the Ground, to the Front of the } Poll Clerk's Desk, or Place that their Books lay on }	5	4
Width of that Desk which ran along the whole Front	1	6
Height of the Rail that stood in the Front of the Booth } to keep off the Horses from them that polled on Foot }	3	6
Distance of that Rail from the Front of the Booth -	7	0
Height of the Step in Front, on which those polling, stood	1	0

The above-mentioned Booth was erected near to the Shire-house, and divided by rails into fourteen Boxes or Polling Places (the number of the justices divisions in the county) which boxes were numbered from right to left; and on boards, affixed to those several boxes, were pasted bills containing the names of the parishes intended to poll thereat, which parishes will be found enumerated in the pages following the Errata. Copies of these bills had been previously posted up by the Sheriff's Bailiffs all over the county, with the following words added at the foot of each bill, viz: "All Persons having Freeholds in any of the above Parishes, are requested to poll for the same, at the Box, No. —, in the Great Booth, on Pennenden Heath."

"LEONARD BARTHOLMEW, Esq. Sheriff."

On the front seat of the Booth sat the Sheriff's Poll Clerks; behind them, on an elevated seat, sat the three Candidates Cheque Clerks, and behind those, on a more elevated seat, sat the Inspectors for those candidates, with a rail before them to lean on, so as to enable them when necessary, to look over all the Clerks Books in front; behind those, and in the center of the Booth, was a Box for the High Sheriff, so elevated as to give him a full view of the whole Booth: at some distance behind him were long tables with seats for the Poll Clerks to dine at, so that there might not be a pretence for their leaving the Booth. At one end of the Booth was an enclosed place for liquors and eatables; at the other end was a narrow entrance well barricaded, and with steep steps so that a small force above, could with ease repel a great one below. Near the center of the rear of the Booth, was a narrow entrance by steps for the introducing such aged and infirm Freeholders as could not come up to poll in front: those two entrances were guarded by four Bailiffs and ten Javelin Men—Carpenters were always in waiting to make repairs if necessary, but which were not necessary, from the singular good order preserved by you Gentlemen during the whole of a most arduous poll.

I do not recollect any other particulars touching the construction of the Booth that may be worth relating:—Why I have taken the liberty of stating my visit to Ashford, and return to Maidstone, as I have done, is, that I may in some degree stand excused to you Gentlemen for any inconvenience that you may have found from a Booth so suddenly constructed: however, after having seen the use of it, I do not conceive any material improvements could have been made thereto, save as follows: I think the Boxes, N^o. 1, 2, 3, 4, 7, and 14, at which lay the great press of business, should have been twice as wide as they were, and two Poll Clerks for the Sheriff put into each of those boxes, and with them should have sat the Candidate's Inspectors, who, in that situation, would have had the best opportunity of seeing that the poll was fairly taken, and of giving great assistance to the clerks, by conveying to them the names of the Freeholders, their residence, &c. &c. Those additions made, I think it highly probable that all the Freeholders polled, might have polled in two days—a matter of some importance to these, and of more to the Candidates.

The High Sheriff, anxious to conduct himself with perfect impartiality to all parties, did, on each day, give to each of the Candidates, a certain number of tickets for the admission of their Friends and Agents into the Booth, and no person whatsoever was admitted without one of those tickets: on the second and third days, I think, the number given to each Candidate was 47, and no infirm or aged Freeholder was admitted at the back door to poll at the Booth, but at the request and in the presence of the three Candidates, or of their managers, to which Candidates, Managers, and their several Inspectors, I beg leave to return my sincere and hearty thanks for their great assistance to me during so fatiguing a business.

I have the honor to be,

GENTLEMEN,

Your most obedient humble Servant,

AUGUS. GREENLAND,

Under-Sheriff.

P. S. I beg leave to add, that no Council were employed in the Booth, nor any oath administered to the voters, save the Oath of Qualification (Vide 19 George II. ch. 28, sect. 1.) which was administered to them generally; and also save where the vote was given by virtue of a rent charge, estate by descent, marriage, devise, speculation, or promotion, but each clerk had all the oaths that could be required, passed on his desk, ready to refer to, if necessary.
